

Recent and some Holocene Foraminifera of the southern Baltic Sea

Irena Brodniewicz

Acta Palaeontologica Polonica 10 (2), 1965: 131-226

The fauna of the Benthonic Holocene (8 species) and Recent (48 species) Foraminifera of the Southern Baltic Sea has been described, and three new species: Reophax hoeglundi, Reophax mankowskii and Elphidium kozlowskii, have been distinguished. The distribution of the Baltic Foraminifera has been investigated in correlation with the physico-chemical conditions of the environment, The methods of preparing and handling the samples and their influence on the possibilities of the preservation of the t ests of the Foraminifera lin the fossil state have been discussed.

This is an open-access article distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution License (for details please see creativecommons.org), which permits unrestricted use, distribution, and reproduction in any medium, provided the original author and source are credited.

Full text (5,574.9 kB)